

Internet SAFETY for your entire Family

By: John Brady - Fox River Networks

With the Internet providing unprecedented access to Negative On-line Influences, parents are searching for ways to keep their children safe.

As owners of Fox River Networks, my wife and I, share your concerns about how to keep children safe on-line. We had the resources and ability to properly research how to protect our children. Most parents that we talked to were very interested in what we had done, but felt overwhelmed by the choices. We decided to create a service offering to assist parents in the process of adding these controls to their computers.

Fox River Networks partnered with InternetSafety.com to combine their award winning Parental Control software and our expert personal computer assistance. At your request, we control your PC remotely, install the software for you, and establish the controls that meet your family needs.

Parental Control Software can be a challenge to configure well. You need to allow enough access to take advantage of the benefits that the Internet can provide, while also blocking things that you consider inappropriate. This can be different for every age group and family.

We take the time to help you understand what you can accomplish with these controls, and then implement what is important to you.

- 45% have been asked for personal information by someone they don't know.
- When teens receive messages on-line from someone they don't know, 40% usually reply to and chat with that person.

- Instant Messaging - Block it, or Record it with the IM logging feature.
- Time Limits - Set amount of time per day, or hours of Internet access.
- Social Network Monitoring - Monitor activity on sites like MySpace and Facebook.
- Program Blocking - Prevent programs from communicating with the Internet.
